ABSTRACT

Education is a vital investment in our national development. Deterioration in the standards of our education has drawn attention of both the planners and the general public. The present article highlights some issues concerning the rapid deterioration in the standards of education. The findings present not only the problems but also suggestions for improvement. This research is based on the responses from teachers, students and parents of the students of Gomal University, D.I.Khan through three different types of questionnaires on the problems. The analysis indicates a worst kind of politicising of our educational institutions. There is educational training of teachers, motivation of students towards commensurate pursuit and acquisition of knowledge and preparation and implementation of such academic programmes as are oriented towards our national development, prosperity and security.

INTRODUCTION

It is worthful to observe that importance of education for the nation's development has been realized all along the time in past and present. But the national target have not been achieved yet and furtherly to it is felt that there is no hope for any solid improvement by keeping the prevailing traditional education system in the same infrasture.

Undoutly many important factors affecting the standard of education has been ignored alongwith the budgetary allocation to the education sector, which has never been a reasonable share to the country;s annual G.N.P. It had almost been less than 1% till last few years. This situation has some how improved very little from the last two years, but still we are far behind in the list of even this world countries who spend their annual
